A Typological Classification Of Perfumes For Innate Types

April 27, 2025

The typological classification of perfumes was created with the purpose of logical connection of certain smells with innate type, temperament, group and age. We, as the authors of this classification are in no way connected with these perfume brands, are not their representatives and do not work for them. We do not sell their fragrances and perfumes.

This classification was carried out personally by us (authors of this website and theory) on the basis of subjective analysis of smells and knowledge of the theory in the typology. You can call these lists our subjective opinion. If the list of perfumes does not contain some company or brand – it means that we have not yet managed to smell and collect samples of the smell of such perfumes.

This list and classification of perfumes is not a strict recommendation to choose a perfume of any particular brand or name.

Let's start. More than 500 different perfumes and fragrances await you.

Perfumes For Innate Group And Type

Try searching for any fragrance by its exact name or see the listings below

Below are the blocks by innate group. You can explore other scents to compare them as well.

What should I do with this classification of perfumes?

If you study our theory in detail, and take our free test on your own afterward, you can roughly understand your type and your other innate characteristic. Of course, the free test cannot be accurate and cannot be used as evidence or biometrics. You will only be able to recognize your innate type with a higher probability under our live observation.

As you may have also noticed this list is not complete and fragrances for some types in some groups of people have not yet been found and discovered by us. Therefore, we may add new perfumes to this typology over time. Check this page from time to time on your own.

Our list may contain some small errors in perfume or brand names, so if you notice such errors, please let us know so we can correct.
